

Todd Rosenbluth

Senior Director, Research & Analytics
US Equity Research

Todd Rosenbluth is a senior director for S&P Capital IQ Equity Research Department and is a member of the multi-asset team. In addition to being the lead developer of Standard & Poor's revised Mutual Fund Ranking Methodology that involves holdings-based analysis, he supports the Exchange Traded Fund (ETF) Methodology. .

Todd has been interviewed and quoted numerous times in various newspapers and magazines, including Barrons, Bloomberg, New York Times, Financial Advisor magazine, The Wall Street Journal and the Washington Post. He has also been frequently quoted on the Internet, and has appeared on CNN and CNBC as well as other media outlets such as Bloomberg TV. Todd also is a Group Head and has responsibility for stocks within the S&P Equity Research's telecom services, telecom equipment, electric and gas utilities industries and also serves as a member of S&P Equity Research's Portfolio Services Group.

Todd previously served in other financial positions at the company such as International Mutual Fund Sector Specialist and Large Cap Value and Large Cap Growth Analyst, as well as serving on the Fund Services Asset Allocation Committee.

Prior to joining S&P in 2001, Todd was managing editor of Value Line Mutual Fund Survey and Senior Large Cap and Small Cap Value Mutual Fund Analyst. He also held the position of Financial Adviser with Morgan Stanley.

In 1997, Todd received a B.G.S in Finance from the University of Michigan and received an MBA in Finance from New York University in 2002.

Contact Todd: todd_rosenbluth@spcapitaliq.com