

Richard Tortoriello

Director
S&P Capital IQ Equity Research

Richard Tortoriello is a director with the S&P Capital IQ Equity Research Department. He covers the aerospace & defense industry, including General Electric, Boeing, United Technologies, all the major U.S. defense contractors, and a number of other aerospace-related companies. He also authors a bi-annual industry survey entitled "Aerospace & Defense."

Prior to his current position Richard performed quantitative research for Standard & Poor's and covered a variety of emerging growth stocks, particularly in the financial, energy, and technology sectors. Richard was also S & P's semiconductor equipment analyst for three years.

Prior to joining the equity department in August 2000, Richard served as a software product manager for Thomson Financial, Standard & Poor's, and Simon & Schuster, and published a stock market advisory newsletter ("Market Perspectives").

Richard holds a B.S. and M.S. in education from Florida State University and an M.B.A. with a concentration in corporate finance from Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Contact Richard: richard_tortoriello @spcapitaliq.com